1 Preliminaries

The video service is provided by Deutsche Telekom, best known here in the States for their T-mobile cell phone service. At the start of the season, buying the subscription was not possible from a US-based IP address, because the website is configured to redirect to a local server for the payment if possible. The network would time-out on the US server, so the only way to run the transaction was to do so with a German IP address by connection to a German VPN. This problem appears to be fixed now.
